Pfizer Vaccine Goes Into Liver Cells and Is Converted to DNA: Study

CLINICAL STUDY

The messenger RNA (mRNA) from Pfizer's COVID vaccine is able to enter human liver cells and is converted into DNA, according to Swedish researchers at Lund University.

The researchers found that when the mRNA vaccine enters the human liver cells, it triggers the cell's DNA, which is inside the nucleus, to increase the production of the LINE-1 gene expression to make mRNA.

The mRNA then leaves the nucleus and enters the cell's cytoplasm, where it translates into LINE-1 protein. A segment of the protein called the open reading frame-1, or ORF-1, then goes back into the nucleus, where it attaches to the vaccine's mRNA and reverse transcribes into spike DNA.

Reverse transcription is when DNA is made from RNA, whereas the normal transcription process involves a portion of the DNA serving as a template to make an mRNA molecule inside the nucleus.

"In this study we present evidence that COVID mRNA vaccine BNT162b2 is able to enter the human liver cell line Huh7 in vitro," the researchers wrote in the study, published in Current Issues of Molecular Biology. "BNT162b2 mRNA is reverse transcribed intracellularly into DNA as fast as 6 [hours] after BNT162b2 exposure."

BNT162b2 is another name for the Pfizer vaccine that is marketed under the name Comirnaty.

The whole process occurred rapidly within six hours. The vaccine's mRNA converting into DNA and being found inside the cell's nucleus is something that the CDC said would not happen.

"The genetic material delivered by mRNA vaccines never enters the nucleus of your cells," the CDC claimed falsely on its web page titled "Myths and Facts about COVID-19 Vaccines."

This is the first time that researchers have shown in vitro or inside a petri dish how an mRNA vaccine is converted into DNA on a human liver cell line, and is what health experts and fact-checkers said for over a year could not occur.

The CDC says that the “COVID-19 vaccines do not change or interact with your DNA in any way,” claiming that all of the ingredients in both mRNA and viral vector COVID-19 vaccines are discarded from the body once antibodies are produced. These vaccines deliver genetic material that instructs cells to begin making spike proteins found on the surface of SARS-CoV-2 that causes COVID-19 to produce an immune response.

Pfizer didn’t comment on the findings of the Swedish study and said only that its mRNA vaccine does not alter the human genome. “Our COVID-19 vaccine does not alter the DNA sequence of a human cell,” a Pfizer spokesperson told The Epoch Times. “It only presents the body with the instructions to build immunity.”

More than 215 million or 64.9 percent of Americans are fully vaccinated as of Feb. 28, with 94 million having received a booster dose.

The Swedish study also found spike proteins expressed on the surface of the liver cells that researchers say may be targeted by the immune system and possibly cause autoimmune hepatitis, as “there have been case reports on individuals who developed autoimmune hepatitis after BNT162b2 vaccination.”

The authors of the first reported case of a healthy 35-year-old female who developed autoimmune hepatitis a week after her first dose of the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine said that there is a possibility that “spike-directed antibodies induced by vaccination may also trigger autoimmune conditions in predisposed individuals” as it has been shown that “severe cases of SARS-CoV-2 infection are characterized by an autoinflammatory dysregulation that contributes to tissue damage,” which the virus’s spike protein appears to be responsible for.

Spike proteins may circulate in the body after an infection or injection with a COVID-19 vaccine. It was assumed that the vaccine’s spike protein would remain mostly at the injection site and last up to several weeks like other proteins produced in the body. But studies are showing that is not the case.

The Japanese regulatory agency's biodistribution study of the Pfizer vaccine showed that some of the mRNAs moved from the injection site and through the bloodstream, and were found in various organs such as the liver, spleen, adrenal glands, and ovaries of rats 48 hours following injection.

In a different study, the spike proteins made in the body after receiving a Pfizer COVID-19 shot have been found on tiny membrane vesicles called exosomes—that mediate cell-to-cell communication by transferring genetic materials to other cells—for at least four months after the second vaccine dose.

The persistence of the spike protein in the body “raises the prospect of sustained inflammation within and damage to organs which express the spike protein,” according to experts at Doctors for COVID Ethics, an organization consisting of physicians and scientists “seeking to uphold medical ethics, patient safety, and human rights in response to COVID-19.”

“As long as the spike protein can be detected on cell-derived membrane vesicles, the immune system will be attacking the cells that release these vesicles,” they said.

Dr. Peter McCullough, an internist, cardiologist, and epidemiologist, wrote on Twitter that the Swedish study's findings have “enormous implications of permanent chromosomal change and long-term constitutive spike synthesis driving the pathogenesis of a whole new genre of chronic disease.”

Whether the findings of the study will occur in living organisms or if the DNA converted from the vaccine's mRNA will integrate with the cell's genome is unknown. The authors said more investigations are needed, including in whole living organisms such as animals, to better understand the potential effects of the mRNA vaccine.

“At this stage, we do not know if DNA reverse transcribed from BNT162b2 is integrated into the cell genome. Further studies are needed to demonstrate the effect of BNT162b2 on genomic integrity, including whole genome sequencing of cells exposed to BNT162b2, as well as tissues from human subjects who received BNT162b2 vaccination,” the authors said.

What scares me most is DNA manipulation. What happens when people have children that appear to be unrelated to them because of DNA manipulation. Or better yet, what happens when we are no longer able to identify the murders, thieves, rapist because their DNA has been manipulated.

My sister works in pediatrics... she noticed that suddenly certain kids were becoming eerily compliant, and the parents of those kids are the covid freaks who got them jabbed. She also sees people's auras, and every person who's jabbed has an aura that immediately goes from its usual iridescent colors to gray, and eventually comes back to a flat color. (Don't laugh, skeptics – this stuff is real) The shot changes people, they're not who they were before they got it... there's a terrifying truth to what you say, @Miniminer1.

It's not for identification. If you search Google for human patents, this comes up.

"Myriad Genetics, Inc., the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that human genes cannot be patented in the U.S. because DNA is a "product of nature." The Court decided that because nothing new is created when discovering a gene, there is no intellectual property to protect, so patents cannot be granted"

The DNA is made with synthetic pseudouridine making it man made and patentable. Also, Moderna already has a patent on a gene sequence in the furin cleavage site of the virus. Guess what. 100% of the nucleotide sequence of that patent is in the spike protein of the virus.

Absolutely! And everyone knows that human cells react totally differently than the same type of cell from an animal. In fact, why would anyone think we could learn anything from the behavior of animal cells, eh? It's like Nancy Pelosi wisely said: "We have to pass the bill to see what's in it." So the ONLY way to see whether a "vaccine" will harm humans is to...wait for it...force a few thousand "volunteers" to take the jab and see if they have any bad effects.

....But of course covid was (is) such a horribly deadly threat that the gooberment couldn't wait, so they tested the "vaccine" on 240 million Americans—some of whom had to be threatened with firing to get 'em to take it. Thanks, Joe! Thanks, Democrats! You've kept America safe! Well, except for unknown future effects. But how bad could those be, eh? Cuz, you folks are so smaht.
