Financial Meltdown 2.0: Covid Vax Kills Life Insurers

BY MIKE / 21 FEBRUARY 2022

Yogi Berra called and he says he's got Deja Vu like it's the 2008 financial crisis all over again.

In 2008, formerly staid and respectable mortgage lenders found themselves at huge risk from stupid government policies forcing them to lend to people who could not pay back. Never fear, they had spread the risk in the secondary market, which should have had a stabilizing effect, but ended up more like a circular firing squad with banks toppling like dominoes.

History does not repeat, but it rhymes:

In 2021, staid, respectable, and conservative insurance companies suddenly found themselves at huge risk from bad government policies over Covid and adverse reactions to the vaccines, with a statistically improbable increase (average 40%) in insured deaths among prime working age people. Edward Dowd (a former BlackRock stock picker) said in interviews with Steve Bannon and Alex Jones, that life insurers turned to the reinsurance market to diversify their biggest risks, and paid premiums which did not look like a good deal at the time, but may turn out to be brilliant business.

As Dowd said, who will be left holding the bag? Will it turn into a circular firing squad of risk handoffs that will bring down most of the insurance market? Also, insurers do not like to pay out for risks they didn't factor in – in France, some life insurers are trying to classify death by “voluntarily” taking experimental vaccines as suicide. In the USA it is more likely to become huge litigation against big Pharma, unless the government bails out the insurers.

Actually, it is clear, just as it was in 2008, who will be left holding the bag – the people, through increased premiums, increased taxation, and increased money printing.

As a nice note, an article on TownHall.com asked if the unvaxxed will have the last laugh – what if the unvaxxed, like non smokers, got a better price for life insurance?

Notes:

The Edward Dowd interview on InfoWars. The insurance crisis is discussed about minute 16.

El Gato Malo, AKA Bad Cattitude on SubStack talks about Bayesian Data Crimes making the vaccines appear effective.

In order to implement the "grand new society"-- the original must be destroyed.

Otherwise people will want to escape the grand new society for what was once free.

If you were stupid enough to take the an experimental vax without doing any research, so be what it may; do not complain to me about the side effects. Always do you your research and follow the real science; not the political rhetoric. oh yea FJB! let go freedom convoy!!!

Unfortunately, most of my extended family are vaxxed :(. They got it kind of early (because some of them are elderly) and had no reason to suspect there was anything wrong. There were people worried about it, but, until last year, they were the same people who think ALL vaccines are bad ALL the time. I don't know how my immediate family and I escaped it. My wife WAS less hesitant about it than me until Biden convinced her not to take it (when Biden said you MUST get it she is like, HELL NO!). The more government and big business pushed the vaxes the less inclined we were to do them. Now, I will lose business rather than take that thing.

Anyone with a rational mind should have questioned being afraid of a disease with a 99.99% survivability. And, anyone with a rational mind should have at least questioned a highly experimental technology with 2 months of research. And, anyone with a rational mind should have realized that the jab couldn't be undone. Luckily, I have a rational mind.

99.8% of US patients under age 60 who are infected with Covid have survived. The IFR gets much worse s one gets older, especially over age 80. You 99.99% claim is misinformation for Covid, although it might apply to Omicron, which is a new coronavirus common cold, not a new Covid variant.

1 ^ | v 1 • Reply • Share ›

YogicCowboy → doublesixsixman • 15 days ago

It does not get "much worse" - which means that you have yourself posted misinformation.

Cholera has produced real epidemics in the past. None of this - for any age - qualifies as a epidemic/pandemic in historical context.

By the bye, very old people are vulnerable to succumbing to just about any infection; the so-called COVID is therefore not exceptional!

You are a liar. or a fool, or both.

Covid caused many premature deaths of the elderly, especially in 2020. Were you asleep for that year?

They may not have had that many years left but they deserved to enjoy what years they did have left.

I guess you don't care because they were already old ?

CDC estimates one million excess deaths in 2020 and 2021 combined. Many were older people dying prematurely.

Turn off your TV it is all propaganda just like Facebook and Google. The CDC has been caught inflating the numbers 3 times in the last 2 years. Only follow free speech platforms.

The flu has been killing the old and infirm for thousands of years. How can you make a vaccine for a virus that has never been isolated? The CDC still has no live sample so how can you make a vax?

3 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

Do you believe the one million excess deaths in 2020 and 2021 combined were caused by fairy dust, not Covid?

1 ^ | v 1 • Reply • Share >

2019 had close to the same number of deaths from the flu. In 2020 zero deaths from the flu. They just blamed covid based on the PCR test that the Nobel Prize winning Dr Kary Mullis (inventor of the PCR test) stated repeatedly can not detect disease! Here is a link. <https://www.bitchute.com/se...>

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

There were no excess deaths, it was the same rate as the typical flue season. Funny how there were no flue deaths, really? Wake up from your sleep.

SSGT_USA1(AUDIT EVERY STATE) → doublesixsixman • 15 days ago • edited

Not true..even the CDC had to finally admit that all of the so-called covid deaths were not caused by covid..75% died having tested positive, not from an actual case of covid. BIG DIFFERENCE!!! and we all know the test kits are notoriously INACCURATE!!!

3 ^ | v • Reply • Share >

doublesixsixman → SSGT_USA1(AUDIT EVERY STATE) • 14 days ago • edited

Most of the excess deaths in 2020 and 2021 were caused by Covid. The CDC admitted no such thing as you are claiming. And we didn't need the CDC to realize the primary cause of so many more deaths than in a typical year.

It's worth mentioning, that the average age of death from covid, is a few years HIGHER than the national average age of death.

It's also worth mentioning, that national Covid policy never really included early treatment. It was "Go home and try to stay comfortable... and if you have trouble breathing or your nails turn purple or lips turn blue, come to the hospital".

Given there have been early treatment therapeutics since about May/June 2020, that is just medical malpractice. Yes, elderly are more vulnerable, but 100s of thousands have died needlessly because of the suppression of early treatment (Unless you were a member of Congress, or their family...)

3 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

doublesixsixman → DJSetay • 14 days ago

The age of death is irrelevant if you are the person that died prematurely. Covid mainly killed the elderly in 2020 but the disease affected more younger (under age 65) people in 2021.

The lack of early treatment is medical malpractice at the highest level since the Nazis. The demonization of ivermectin and HCQ, among others, is medical malpractice. I told my my own doctor that the US medical professions reputation, following their non-response to Covid after patients have positive PCR tests, is in the toilet, and will stay there for years to come.

The great crime is I bet most normies think covid had a 90% death rate because the media pushed that narrative. How many of them even saw the statistics we did? Few I bet. And now when it is clear we were lied to about everything, no way are they going to believe they were wrong-- betrayed by the state. If they do wake up, all hell is breaking loose.

We (82 and 88) chose not to take the vaccine -- caught Omicron this year - survived just fine. It still leaves us unvaccinated and "limited freedom" by government. We are retired, but those of you who suffer the lose of business, associates and freedoms - I applaud you - in the end, it will be you who win this war.

Smart move.

The elderly who are most vulnerable to Covid infection spike proteins ... are also most vulnerable to spike proteins created by the vaccines.

Omicron is a common cold unrelated to the much more deadly Covid variants. It is NOT a Covid variant, It is a coronavirus common cold.

Thanks for the "smart move" compliment. All too often we seniors are blown off thinking we are too far gone to make such decisions! We "old dogs" sometimes have the answer which comes from lots of experience. We also come from an era where you "toughed out" illnesses, picked yourself up and moved on. It seems to have worked for us:) Two aspirin and lots of Vicks on your chest took care of most things!

No... omicron is an ADE driven variant of SARS CoV2, with an R-naught rivaling that of Measles. Measles has a generally considered R-naught of 12-18, and is extremely contagious. The actual R-naught of measles and omicron is probably closer to 8-14.

For many folks, especially unvaccinated people who have had SARS CoV 2 "original" or Delta, it may have very minimal symptoms, even just a case of the sniffles.

Elderly with ANY age related disease challenge are certainly more vulnerable to respiratory infections, whether viral or bacterial.

1 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

doublesixsixman → DJSetay • 14 days ago

Omicron has 30 mutations of the spike protein versus Delta Covid. A true new SARS 2 variant would have only one or two spike protein mutations.

Omicron has the same symptoms as any other coronavirus common cold. Its symptoms do not resemble Delta Covid.

When a new coronavirus disease has the SAME symptoms as a common cold, it is a common cold.

The fact that Omicron spreads very easily does NOT change its description away from a new common cold.

Every statement you made in your comment is wrong.

Omicron has minimal symptoms in almost every infected person, just like a common cold. Of course a very sickly elderly person can have their common cold lead to pneumonia and death, but those are rare exceptions.

It is very easy for a PCR test to detect a virus. The PCR test will detect 52 different viruses. Sometimes even dead viruses But if the patient's respiratory symptoms are severe, it's very unlikely that the patient has Omicron.

1 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›
