A baby tragically drowned in three inches of bathwater when her mother fainted 24 hours after taking the AstraZeneca Covid vaccine, an inquest has heard.

Lawyer Louise Atkinson blacked out as she bathed nine-month-old Eleanor, nicknamed Ellie, the day after receiving the first dose of the jab.

Her husband James came home from a trip to the dentist and pushed open the bathroom door to discover it had been blocked by his unresponsive wife on the floor.

To his horror, he saw their baby daughter face down in the bath turning blue.

Mr Atkinson picked her out of the water and woke his wife by grabbing hold of her. He then laid Ellie on the bathroom floor where he began CPR while calling 999 on speakerphone.

Mr Atkinson, a business manager, carried on the resuscitation attempts until the emergency services arrived six minutes later at their £500,000 home in Christchurch, Dorset.

Ellie was flown by helicopter to Southampton General Hospital, Hampshire, but was pronounced dead four hours later on March 23, 2021.

It is not known for how long Ellie was submerged before Mr Atkinson found her, although it could have been as long as 30 minutes.

A post-mortem examination found that 'on the balance of probabilities' the cause of death was inhalation of water or drowning.

Police investigated Ellie's death and concluded it was a 'tragic accident'.

They contacted Public Health England about Mrs Atkinson's adverse reaction to the vaccine and were sent a general report which said 'sleepiness and drowsiness' was an uncommon possible side effect.

The Bournemouth inquest heard Ellie was born premature at 33 weeks and had a heart defect as well as feeding problems which meant she was underweight.

She was due to have heart surgery on March 25 and Mrs Atkinson said she had struggled to sleep or eat in the days beforehand due to 'anxiety' about

There was also the added stress of arranging Covid tests for her and that they could accompany Ellie during her planned ten-day stay in hospital.

Mrs Atkinson said she decided to give her daughter a bath as she had during her morning feed, and needed a 'surgical wash' ahead of being taken to hospital for the procedure.

She said she began bathing her daughter at 10.30am on March 23 and that baths have typically lasted 10 to 15 minutes.

Ellie was sat in a bath seat in three inches of water and Mrs Atkinson told the inquest the last thing she remembers was bending down to lift her out.

An emotional Mrs Atkinson said: 'I started to pick her up and that's all I can remember. The next thing I can remember is James shouting and pulling at me.'

Appearing via video link at the inquest Mr Atkinson wept as he described finding his wife and daughter at about 11.15am.

He said: 'I walked upstairs and saw the bathroom door was closed, which was unusual. I started to push the door open but I couldn't open it. I pushed it harder and that's when I saw Louise on the floor and Ellie in the bath.

'I forced my way in through the door and picked Ellie out of the bath. I laid Ellie on the floor and started CPR and made a call to the emergency services.

'I was trying to do two things at once with the speaker phone next to me. I did CPR until the paramedics attended and took over.'

Bournemouth Town Hall where the inquest into the death of baby Eleanor took place

Mrs Atkinson, who is a senior lawyer for the AA, said it was unusual for her to faint and it had only happened twice to her prior to Ellie's death, both times in her late teens.

She said she experienced another black-out while visiting Ellie's grave the day after receiving her second Oxford-Astrazeneca jab in June 2021.

A passer-by saw her fall to the ground and came to her aid.

Mrs Atkinson told the inquest she underwent a seven day assessment after her second fainting episode and while no definite explanation could be reached by professionals, her reaction to the vaccine was cited as a contributory factor.

She said: 'I had the Oxford-Astrazeneca Covid vaccine the day before (Ellie died) and looking back I felt strange and not myself.

'On the day after my second jab in June 2021 I went to see Ellie because she is buried quite near to us and we go every day.

'I walked there and crouched down by her side and all I can remember after that was a guy helping me.

'He said he had seen me starting to fall and I was disorientated.

'I had a seven day assessment and no one has been able to offer a definitive explanation, but the conclusion is that it was a reaction to the vaccine very much based on other circumstances as well.'

Detective Sergeant Phil Read, of Dorset police, said: 'We concluded it accident that Ellie had died of drowning in the bath and potentially the contributing factors to this.

'One being the potential adverse effect of the Covid vaccine. Mrs Atkinson had a lack of sleep as they were going through a stressful time. She had a slim build.

'All these factors could have caused her potentially to have stood up to pick Ellie up and pass out.

'She had potentially collapsed or fallen unconscious for an extended period of time.'

Dorset assistant coroner Brendan Allen recorded a verdict of accidental death. He said: 'Ellie was having a bath at home supervised by her mother when her mother collapsed and fell unresponsive.'

'Ellie was found by her father unresponsive in the bath and the paramedics were called. She was transferred to Southampton Hospital where she died.'

'My conclusion is she died as a consequence of an accident.'

CAN A COVID JAB MAKE YOU FAINT?

Lots of people faint after being vaccinated for any disease, but it usually happens just after getting the jab.

There have not been any widely reported cases of people fainting a full day later.

Fainting after a jab is normally due to anxiety about getting vaccinated rather than the vaccine itself.

That's why most of the time it happens around 5–10 minutes after getting a jab.

It is most common in children and young people or those who have a history of fainting.

The World Health Organization (WHO) refers to it as 'immunisation anxiety' or an 'immunisation stress-related response'.

In Mrs Atkinson's case, she said she remembered fainting twice prior to getting her vaccines.

The NHS says that drowsiness and fatigue are uncommon side effects from the Covid jabs that can last up to a week.

Mrs Atkinson also suffered a second fainting episode the day after her second jab, which has puzzled medics further.

However, side effects have been more frequently reported after the second Covid vaccine.

Fainting is one of the reasons Britons were told to wait at Covid vaccination clinics for 10 minutes before being allowed to leave and drive home.
