Time running out to stop Biden's plot to secretly undermine U.S. national sovereignty

The fact that the European Union has the Digital Services Act and the U.K. has proposed an Online Safety Bill are among the latest evidence that it was not mere coincidence that the U.S. Department of Homeland Security recently decided to create a Disinformation Governance Board.

This is all tied in together, along with the sneaky ploy by the Biden administration to create an all-powerful United Nations World Health Organization, which we were among the first to report back on April 24.

The idea, directed by the billionaire backers of the World Economic Forum, is to crack down on free speech at the very same time they are setting up a noose to hang around the necks of sovereign nations.

By amending an existing health treaty, called the International Health Regulations of 2005 (IHR), they are able to bypass U.S. Senate approval, which means no public debate and no media coverage of this sovereignty-killing power grab. It will all be done under the cloak of darkness in Geneva, Switzerland, when the WHO World Health Assembly meets May 22-28.

That's why we see the timing of these anti-free speech measures unfolding now in all of the formerly free nations. They are designed to keep users of large social media platforms immersed in the government narrative about the forever virus (Covid), about whether elections in formerly free Western nations are actually still free and fair, about the holy and righteous nature of Ukraine's war with Russia that everyone must support.

And don't forget about that other tenet of the new one-world religion: climate change. The unpopular green new deal policies that Biden was unable to pass through Congress could be simply implemented under the newly upgraded IHR regulations.

And you wondered how the Great Reset was going to reach out and touch you, making you own nothing and be happy?

I think you have the answer now.

If the United Nations World Health Organization gets the desired new powers that the Biden administration has proposed to give it, look out. These 13 proposed amendments would create a beast with teeth at the United Nations.

Let's be clear on what's happening. They are building the infrastructure for global governance and strengthening the infrastructure that's already in place.

If you would like to sign the petition against this travesty you may do so here.

I don't believe petitions will do much good, other than to offer a historical record behind that shows everyone was not asleep when this global power grab played out.

As dangerous as the WHO is, it still can't impose policy on its 194 member nations without the consent of those nations. Their dictates can be checkmated by national sovereignty. Doing so can be dangerous, just ask the dead president of Tanzania. But it still can be done.

If Biden and his Health and Human Services chief, Xavier Baccera, get their way, the nations of the world will not have their sovereignty snatched away. No, they will hand it over.

The vote takes place May 22-28 in Geneva, Switzerland. All that's required is a simple majority vote and, poof, there goes the sovereignty of 194 nations of the world over matters of "public health emergencies," which could include a wide range of issues, not just viruses.

The changes to the 2005 treaty also include the addition of new "regional" health czars under the authority of the WHO. These czars will have their own bureaucratic cohorts to police the policies they impose on the nations. Aid can be withheld, punishing economic sanctions can be placed on any nation that deviates from the prescribed WHO remedy for whatever health emergency has been declared by the WHO director general. That would be Dr. Tedros, a known asset of the Chinese Communist Party.

The CDC has already declared that "firearm injuries are a serious public health problem." So is falling in the bathtub, skydiving, riding a bicycle on a busy highway, and mountain climbing, but you don't see the CDC getting involved in any of those dangerous activities. This is all political and has nothing to do with your health. The Republicans if they gain power should fire every executive level person and replace them with legitimate scientists who are not political. If that can't be achieved then shut the whole agency down. If a political leader isn't willing to consider these tough decisions then they should not get our support. That includes some of the biggest names in politics. Ask them these questions. If they don't answer with at least legitimate, heartfelt concern, then dust your sandals and move on from them. I don't care how big of name they have in politics.

The CDC has essentially become an arm of the WHO. Both of these agencies are the enemy of public health.

But before they can implement this ghastly plan they need to beef up the WHO's enforcement powers.

If that is achieved in less than two weeks in Geneva, then the revised International Health Regulations will go into effect in November. If that happens, every nation that voted against the Biden amendments needs to pull out of the WHO.

Biden has already garnered the support of at least 40 nations, including the EU, to help ram these amendments through.

If these amendments get passed and the WHO member nations abide by them, there will be catastrophic consequences for the world. The lights will go out on individual freedom in the U.S. and every other formerly free country.

Every city in America potentially becomes Shanghai. Where lockdowns are not only always looming over people's heads but when they come they come hard and strict. Your house or apartment becomes your own personal prison and you are 100 percent dependent on the government for your basic needs.

But before they can get to that point, they need to figure out a way to silence all dissent.

These are the sacred gospels of the New World Order about which nobody is allowed to dissent.

Remember, in the Great Reset (aka New World Order) you have no rights, only privileges.

The idea is to hold social media companies responsible for so-called hate speech and "disinformation" posted by users.

Experts interviewed by The Defender addressed the "potential slippery slope of regulations" – in the U.S. and overseas – which, under the guise of "combating disinformation," stifle the spread of information deemed inconvenient for governments and other powerful actors.

A May 12 article by the Defender addresses the international move toward silencing dissent in Europe and the U.S. And while it isn't mentioned by the Defender, we know that Canada, Australia and New Zealand are also stifling dissent. This is an international revolutionary movement and the sooner we figure that out the better.

From Children's Health Defense

As reported by The Defender, in the U.S., these proposals include a government "disinformation board" and a bill pending before Congress, the Digital Services Oversight and Safety Act.

The EU's new regulations, experts said, may have far-reaching impacts beyond Europe.

Michael Rectenwald, author of “Google Archipelago: The Digital Gulag and the Simulation of Freedom,” said he can foresee a future in which such regulations might affect all speech – not just speech on social media platforms.

Rectenwald told The Defender:

“[T]he EU’s DSA represents a major step toward one-world governance of social media and Internet search and one step closer to global government.

“Since the distinction between ‘on-line’ and ‘off-line’ activity will lose all meaning as the Internet includes the Internet of Things and Bodies, the DSA may become the law of the land.”

Is EU’s Digital Services Act on collision course with Musk’s Twitter plans?

In timing that coincided with Elon Musk’s intent to purchase Twitter, the EU announced April 23 the passage of the Digital Services Act (DSA).

The DSA seeks to tackle the spread of “misinformation and illegal content” and will apply “to all online intermediaries providing services in the EU,” in proportion to “the nature of the services concerned” and the number of users of each platform.

According to the DSA, “very large online platforms” (VLOPs) and “very large online search engines” (VLOSEs) – those with more than 45 million monthly active users in the EU – will be subject to the most stringent of the DSA’s requirements.

Big Tech companies will be obliged to perform annual risk assessments to ascertain the extent to which their platforms “contribute to the spread of divisive material that can affect issues like health,” and independent audits to determine the steps the companies are taking to prevent their platforms from being “abused.”

These steps come as part of a broader crackdown on the “spread of disinformation” called for by the Act, requiring platforms to “flag hate speech, eliminate any kind of terrorist propaganda” and implement “frameworks to quickly take down illicit content.”

Regarding alleged “disinformation,” these platforms will be mandated to create a “crisis response mechanism” to combat the spread of such content, with the Act specifically cit- ing the conflict between Russia and Ukraine and the “manipulation” of online content that has ensued.

The DSA also will ban certain types of advertising on digital platforms, including targeted ads tailored to children or to people of specific ethnicities or sexual orientations.

The WHO allowed the public to make comments on their site during a small window in April. I believe there is another opportunity on 16th-17th June to add feedback.

They don't publicise it much (!) but keep an eye out then and do please share the link to the page when it becomes available.

Tony, I believe what you are referring to is something totally separate. There is a separate pandemic treaty, which is an all new treaty, that WHO wants passed but that will take years to materialize. What this article is about is the amendments to the existing treaty which will be voted on May 22 at the World Health Assembly in Geneva.

Why ?? What is wrong with freedom, being a free nation? Making our OWN laws? We have a right under our constitution and I personally do NOT what some other government to tell us how to live our lives! This is NOT a honest or good plan, or there would be open discussion on it. This is sneaky and cowardly.

The problem is that nobody took the problem seriously while they had a chance. Everyone just went along with tolerance of feminism and homosexuality and if you tried to warn them, they called you a conspiracy theorist. Now the boot heel of communist dictatorship is upon the world and people are powerless to stop it because they didn't do their homework when they had a chance.

These are technocrats. Their methods are different than communists. Not your granddad's commies. Because they aren't parachuting out of the sky a la Red Dawn none of the Boomers I talk to have any notion what's going on. Breggin and others know. But none in my rural community GET what's happening or how the world is being taken over while they finish building their front porches. A lot of them will die—all conservatives—because they think the shots are great. The TV tells them—including Fox. And Trump and Bill O'Reilly keep praising them. Some—maybe half of the people could escape. But will they pay the price? The price is dropping out of life, becoming Luddite, forming self sustaining communities around the globe. Will they leave those people alone? Possibly. If they are over the world in large enough numbers their UN troops and robo dogs will be spread thin. And guerrilla warfare can be painful. The technocrats are culling their own loyalists with those clot shots. But most will be killed or enslaved because they won't leave the System. Including Patriots who cling to the toxic remains of our nation state through sentimental nostalgia or ego. "We gotta take back Washington and get OUR CHAD in there to make America great again!" God probably wants to destroy America. We should pray that He spare us His just wrath and preserve us from the corruption around us.

Why should the elitists listen to the nobody's they despise and hate?

Maybe if some Germans had sent a nice petition to Hitler, he would have called off the Holocaust.

That thing about accepting comments is only to create the illusion of consent.

Worth noting the "teeth" are primarily economic. Swarms of UN and CCP soldiers would be too obvious, I guess. No one believes that what's happening in Shanghai has any bearing on us.

The few in the know—like me—realize how futile “action” is. Like writing a stern note to a terrorist group determined to bomb your city. Or a nice little letter. “Please don’t bomb our city because we like living here and it might impact the housing situation.” SMH

Historically, Hitler was concerned about public opinion—that’s why he tried so hard to either suppress it or manipulate it. All totalitarian regimes FEAR any protests. That’s why they peddle lies to keep people confused and unwilling to see their true situation and protest it. However, there were times that Germans had demonstrated against Nazi policy and won some victories. Like the Rosenstrasse protest of 1943 – https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rosenstrasse_protest Too bad there weren’t more of these mass demonstrations early on. It would have changed the course of history.

Steve Brannon and Naomi Wolf were discussing this very thing. But Naomi added a comment that was extremely important. She mentioned about the flood of military aged men from everywhere coming across our southern border and being shipped all over the US. She says this is an army being formed against Americans similar to the mercenaries used by Trudeau in Canada against the truckers and in other countries. She says we all need to prepare to fight this “army”. Naomi Wolf usually knows what she’s talking about. <https://creativestructionmedia.com/video/2022/05/12/wolf-biden-is-going-to-give-the-millions-coming-across-the-border-weapons-to-attack-americans/>

I see some good comments above! Well here we dangle... on the precipice of another Friday the 13th! I'm not superstitious at all, but the globalists are. Just some number games here... who was inaugurated on 3/13/13? I don't think it was a Friday though, but I knew who it was. Time will prove it, no time to haggle over it now. Exactly 7 years later on 3/13/20 in my neck of the woods came the lockdowns over covid, and again I knew. NWO launched. It was a Friday that time. I've been keeping an eye on those days now. For almost a decade I was watching these things and I knew. I knew it was all coming. I knew the end was here. I say this not to boast. I warned the whole time in fact. Rev. 13 is on the way the town herald cried. Skies were clear and blue, not a dark cloud on the horizon. But when you know, you know. So yeah, it's here. Prophecy will be fulfilled. You can't vote away Rev. 13. Okay, some will call me a fatalist or something. You may be able to slow the avalanche of it all, but you won't be able to stop it, only God can and will after a little while of it. But it will be a time! All the parts of it, all the teeth of it, many martyrs will make. But oh the Christians in the West gasp and scale the walls for an escape from that, placing their hopes in a pretrib rescue. Oh, how I yearn for the company of the early Christians, those who bravely and boldly stood for their faith and went to the Coliseum to face the lions and such! Sissies they were not. Where, oh where are they of such strength and courage today? Not their own strength of course. The strength that only God can give. He is not holding back. Yet they need only surrender to Him, they must yield to Him and He will bestow it upon them generously. If only they would seek Him with arms wide open for such things of which there are many in our Christian life and walk. They have not because they ask not. And they have all been too distracted by things like golf and remodeling their houses to pull their heads out of the sand long enough to look around and see the storm clouds on the horizon, dark and fast moving now. I pray that they are ready for what is coming and it's not the pretrib rapture.

Oh, and several years ago, not sure if you recall this but it can be looked up online. Remember when pope francis met with greta thunberg and she held up a sign saying “May 14”? There was supposed to be some ‘humanistic education meeting day’ at the vatican but that was just after March 2020 so it got changed around. I wonder if that has any significance for this weekend? Hmmm..... again time will tell. We must be ever vigilant!

If the globalists want to murder 95% of humanity, does happening to get caught in the crosshairs count as martyrdom? They're killing anyone they can bamboozle right now. Including their staunchest supporters. They just want to kill large numbers of humanity for some Malthusian ideology. Some just happen to be Christians.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services leads the U.S. delegation to WHA. This is Xavier Becerra. He brought you the term “birthing people”, and he also is not a biologist, and therefore can’t define what a woman is. I saw him questioned not to long ago by Laura Boebert and he is quite the slimeball.

I guess you can try to contact him and try to dissuade him from voting for this measure. Maybe mention that it’s not right for an unelected bureaucrat to be able to subject an entire country to the whims of a global body of officials who also haven’t been elected by anyone.

I wonder what the odds of having 2 or more pandemics in the span of 5 years is? If you want a global government, you have to create a global crisis. Another step towards complete control. Of course the U.S. can withdraw from the WHO at any time just like Trump did. Subjecting the people of the U.S. to an authority outside entity is completely unconstitutional. Guess who is poised to benefit from any man made health crisis. The guy that puts the most money into the WHO besides the U.S., Bill Gates.
