The globalist left is engineering the next global famine. They'll blame it on global warming when the truth is it's their own policies that are creating the food shortage across the globe.

Last week the Dutch government shut down 3,000 farms to comply with their global warming goals.

This week Germany ordered farmers to slash fertilizer use in their fields to serve their green agenda.

Meanwhile, the cost of food in the European Union increased 17.26 percent in October of 2022 over the same month in the previous year. via Trading Economics.

Their leaders are as bright as Joe Biden.

Mike Adams at Natural News reported:

Over the last year, the green tyranny bureaucracy of the EU has managed to nearly destroy Western Europe's energy relationship with Russia, leaving the continent desperate for energy inputs to keep its power grid functioning. Now, the food supply of Europe is under direct assault via multiple schemes that seem designed to end affordable food at the same time electricity is becoming unaffordable for businesses and residential households alike.

"Germany bans farmers from properly fertilizing land to serve EU green agenda," declares Breitbart.com. "As of Thursday, the use of nitrate fertilisers has been greatly restricted for large swathes of farmland in North Rhine-Westphalia," the site reports, referring to one of the most abundant food production areas in Germany.

The ban originates with EU bureaucrats waging war on nitrogen, the essential element that makes up nearly 80% of Earth's atmosphere and is critical for crop production. After having declared war on carbon – the building block of biological life – globalists are now targeting nitrogen as means to deliberately engineer widespread famine and mass death (depopulation).
