Climate change. The obsession with it by cultists who desperately want to be proven right about the end of the world has prompted dozens of known (and likely hundreds of unverified) arson attacks this summer in the name of convincing us that heat of the season isn't normal and cow farts are going to kill us all.

It would appear that someone, whether cultists or more nefarious players pushing the globalists' plans, have selected a new target for their escapades. Recycling plants are going up in flames across the country and of course every event is an opportunity for corporate media to blame climate change. Well, not all. One of the nine recent fires has been blamed on a "likely faulty battery."

I still blame the cultists though I'm reserving room for the possibility of it being the globalists with an even darker agenda in play. Where I don't leave room is for the notion that it's all a coincidence that nine recycling plants went up in flames the first two weeks of August when it's hard to find any single month the last five years that had more than one or two incidents. Most had none because recycling plant fires just weren't a thing until now.

Here's video of the latest in Pensacola, Florida:

Recycling plant fires create a very noteworthy statement for those seeking to blame climate change. The billowing smoke and foul stench draw attention and prompt local media to cover the events profusely. It can often be seen from miles away and can linger for days.

Recycling plant fires are the perfect narrative-builders for cultists.

Then again, they also pose a perfect opportunity for globalists and depopulationists to release other toxins into the atmosphere. This is speculation with absolutely zero evidence, but hypothetically if the powers-that-be wanted certain chemicals released into the lower atmosphere then using recycling plant fires spread coast to coast would offer them literal smokescreens to hide their plans.

After all, they can’t keep derailing trains or somebody might get suspicious.

Here’s a list of this month’s recycling plant carnage:

- August 1: Vinton, Texas (mall fire but perhaps their efforts were thwarted)
- August 3: Jacksonville, Florida
- August 6: Albuquerque, New Mexico
- August 9: Oakland, California
- August 11: Brockton, Massachusetts
- August 11: Houston, Texas
- August 12: Glendale, Arizona
- August 12: Boston, Massachusetts
- August 16: Pensacola, Florida

If this pace continues, that would be over 200 recycle plant fires per year.

It would be ironic if cultists really have chosen recycling plants as their targets since one of the purposes of recycling plants is to clean up the environment, but perhaps the messaging is more important to them than the impact of their actions. Of course, nobody ever accused climate change cultists of being logical.

What do you think? Is this coincidence? Cultists? Globalists? Someone else? Leave your comments on my Substack.

These are not happening by chance.
Once again: OVER 5,000,000 UNKNOWNs (probably far more) are within OUR COUNTRY.

We have a brain-dead 'president'.

We have thousands and thousands of the SLANT-EYED BEING from the CCP IN AMERICA already. You think they are resting while not 'on duty'? If you do-I pity you... a fool fooled by those who rely on STUPIDITY of the masses. From what I must view daily-it is too late...CIVIL WAR brews here while NUCLEAR WAR is all over the planet in possibilities. America is not even close to great anymore...not even close.

Unless an article like this follows up with an analysis of who benefits financially from these fires, these stories are just so much clickbait. The Maui fires are so obvious. A cartel of land developers has been coveting Maui's West Coast for half a century but had been blocked by native Hawaiian landowners. That is until last week.

When those who take the oath to defend the constitution from all enemies both foreign and domestic betray their oath, it is up to the American people to defend our country. Never relinquish your 2A rights, or freedom is extinct

Do not forget the 90 food processing plants that were burned down last year.
