These convictions were themselves the basis for a subsequent FALN bombing campaign.

Bill Clinton pardoned most of the perpetrators in 1999, but was rejected by Oscar Lopez Rivera, w

Ayres and his wife Bernadine Dohrn, who led the Weather Underground together, would become getting a taxpayer-funded job in the U of Illinois education department

Mention of Ayres' ties to Obama during the '08 presidential campaign were denounced as racist

In 1983, the Resistance Conspiracy - a spinoff of the Weathermen and many of whose members were involved in the earlier Boudin killings - again bombed the US Senate as well as several other government buildings and participated in military action in Lebanon and Grenada.

Bill Clinton pardoned the perpetrators on his last day as president in 2001

One of these, felony murderer Susan Rosenberg, would go on to receive various activist jobs, including with BLM and a taxpayer-funded teaching position at City University of New York

On January 6th, 2021, a crowd of protestors illegally entered the US Capitol. One was shot by a security guard

To date, none have been pardoned, honored, or provided with taxpayer-funded academic sinecures. The event is described as "The Worst Day in American History."

This is the inverse of O’Sullivan’s law which famously states that “Any organization not explicitly right-wing is left-wing.” In conjunction, the two observations tell us something about what “left” and “right” really mean.

Namely, that “leftism” is simply a word for principal-agent problems and the compromises that occur by ne structure, whereas “rightism” is a word for structures that evolve in the face of competition, whether with n
