The left's fixation on "climate change" is all about power and control—dictating what people can do and micromanaging every aspect of their lives, from their diet to their living conditions and daily routines. And speaking of living conditions, you've probably heard about these "pods" they're trying to glamorize, right? Imagine spending your

The WEF website calls their pods “creative and stylish” and is pushing them as a way to curb homelessness, but you know, their broader plan is likely to have everyone living in one of these dystopian rooms.

WEF:

Framlab explains that each pod is meant to comfortably hold a single person and can be tailored to fit their needs and lifestyle. Access is gained via a staircase built into the aforementioned scaffolding. The pods are easy to assemble and fit together, which also allows them to be easily removed if they — or the building they’re attached to — are in need of repairs or expansions.

Image: Futurism

The agenda of the globalist green communist movement is pretty straightforward: squeeze peasants into the tiniest living spaces imaginable, strip them of ownership, dictate their diet (bugs and plants), and limit their travel to where a bike or their own two feet can carry them. Truthfully, that's a page straight out of how the oppressed people of North Korea live, and they are willing to die trying to escape that lifestyle. Yet, leftists seem to welcome this government-dictated existence, where they're instructed on how to live by wealthy elites who refuse to play by the same rules. It's either cult-like devotion, Stockholm Syndrome, or outright ignorance. Perhaps it's a combination of all three.

There's a really eerie vibe when people born into a supposedly "free country" actually relish the notion of having basic necessities "issued" or "rented" to them, either because their pod is too cramped or because the government thinks they won't use the items "responsibly" enough on their own. This brings us to the latest dystopian gadget likely coming to a US apartment complex near you. Forget owning a printer, vacuum, headphones, or any other daily necessity. Now, you'll get to trek down to a glorified vending machine and rent whatever device you need. It sounds thrilling, doesn't it? Imagine renting a vacuum and spreading around someone else's skin flakes, hair, and dust all over your tiny pod, all for the bargain price of 65 cents a minute!

Noor Bin Ladin shared this disturbingly "perky" and dystopian clip on her popular X account:

"I don't have space for a printer in my pod, this *smart rental store* is so cool!"

You'll own nothing and you'll be happy. pic.twitter.com/ACxDVZN55k

— Noor Bin Ladin (@NoorBinLadin) February 2, 2024

Watching a clip like this, you've got to wonder about the mindset of some of these whackos. What is it about mindless liberalism that has people cheerfully walking the plank, grinning all the way? It's a repeat of the COVID vaccine scenario. If the government snaps its fingers, they jump—no questions asked. These folks would probably amputate a limb if the government claimed it would "save the planet." It makes you realize that liberalism really is a mental disorder. They seem ecstatic to live in a pod, munch on bugs, and own nothing. Good for them, but don't for a second believe that the rest of us are lining up to join in.

Since these pods are so wonderful, Der Fuhrer Schwab and his filthy diseased ilk should be overwhelmingly happy at the prospect of living in one of these mansions with their fellow master race.

You know... In most locations those Tulu kiosks will be junk dumps in a month or less - even with heavy handed enforcement of "community rules." Common ownership means "It's not my problem."

No. The agenda is to eliminate the peasants, except for the few million who will do servant stuff that their robots can't do.

Of course, the idiots are too stupid to realize that someone will have to maintain the robots. They probably think that other robots will do the maintenance. Ultimately, there will be one robot that maintains 4 that maintain 4, etc. Global Demons beyond anything that the Attila's, Ghenghis's and Mao's have achieved before.

Make $280 per hour. The hiring procedure might not be simple. All you need to complete any task is this. Providing a wide range of employment possibilities on job boards and search engines is essential.

Take a look at this..... careersrevenue35.blogspot.c...

I'm a woman and I watched the beginning of feminism and, the advancement of feminism, followed by its destruction of the American male and now, the destruction of our country.

When I was 12 - right around the time feminism became a trend - I agreed that if a woman did EQUAL work, she should be paid equally. The problem arose when I really MEANT "equal" not "kinda" equal, like they did, and the scales fell from my eyes. Feminism was clearly NOT about women not being "chattel;" it was a part of a devious plan, a Marxist plan, to destroy America - and here we are.

I worked in male dominated industries my entire life. I was always paid as much or more than the guys. Never had an issue from any of the men either.

Most guys I know, their wives make more.

Feminism was designed to break up the White family unit, just like LBJ killed the Black family unit.

Never was one never will be. They are miserable people that have to put down others to make themselves feel better.

I was just telling my son that all this started w/ feminism movement. Women got jobs to make them feel important, then they only wished they cld quit,but, alas, they started having more expenses, so that turned out impossible to do.

Feminism became vogue at the same time that government was growing ever larger. How convenient for government to convince women to work so the higher taxes would be less objectionable to families. So what does government do now — convince people that children would be happier working?

...and destroying (the country and culture) it is. The women's movement started in or rather before June 4, 1919 the day congress passed womens' suffrage. The single largest right to vote increase ever, well until congress gives the 30 million illegals the power to vote for the uniparty.

And it's no surprise they're confused . Pop culture has convinced them they don't need men because they're stronger, smarter, invincible girl bosses, and all men are morons who need to be controlled. at the same time they undermine themselves by allowing transgender men to displace them in sports, share their bathrooms, and make a mockery of womanhood (see Dillion Mulvaney). Meanwhile women who transition to men aren't exactly reaping the so-called benefits of being men. They're just uglier and hairier.

I agree. Mostly white, obese (LARD ASSES) women, uglier than sin that get paid by the globalist Soros with their stupid green, purple or blue hair. Seriously, who would find that and say Mmmmm, Mmmmm I need some of that? I'd rather pleasure myself with 30 grit sandpaper.

I'm sure that every piece of equipment in there is of the highest quality, and everything in it will be maintained by a highly-qualified and well trained maintenance crew that is compensated generously for doing such a good job. not really... after a couple months the closet of shit no one owns will be full of garbage and broken gear.

Today's conservatism is the actual counter culture. Today's liberalism is all about the collective. Fitting in even if you don't like it, since stepping out of line is social suicide. These snow flakes have a deadly fear of standing on their own two feet. They want nothing to do with freedom, they just want a kind master.

As soon as I see even one attendee at the davos confab sell off all their wealth and join the sweaty masses in the human beehive, that will be the day I give them even a millisecond of consideration. Since we know it will never happen I feel safe in ignoring their idiocy. Hell apartments in any projects in any major city provides more living space than that and how well do those work? They sound more like a boil to be lanced from a host structure.

if you find someone who has been duped into believing using fossil fuels is a main cause of climate change, ask him or her what should the earth's temperature be.

if they have an answer (it will be made up), ask them why they think that is what it should be.

ask them why they think humans can control the earth's temperature.

ask them why they put their faith in rich and powerful elitists.

ask them if they knew that not all climate scientists believe that co2 is at too high of levels in our atmosphere.

ask them if they knew the earth's climate has been warming naturally for thousands of years.

knowledge is the best antidote for ignorance.
